

XM radio provides a service, a service I pay for. What gives the government the right to step in and control it. The quality of xm radio compares to no other. The FCC should have no right to control how we listen to music or the right to censor what we choose to. Howard Stern is a perfect example. He is not successful because no one liked to listen to him. But yet you're making it your daily goal to take him off the air.